

Mandates of Participatory Bodies Representing Teachers and the Role of the Local Union and Teachers in the English Sector:

The School Board Parity and School Level Special Needs Committees

The Provincial Collective Agreement provides for the establishment of two committees in connection with students with handicaps, social maladjustments or learning difficulties (students with special needs), namely the parity committee (clause 8-9.04) at the school board level and the school-level committee (clause 8-9.05).

The purpose of the two committees is:

- To involve the local union and teachers in the organization and allocation of services for at-risk students and students with special needs.
 - To make services available as quickly as possible to students so early interventions can be carried out and problems can be prevented.

The Local Union and the School Board Parity Committee

As per clause 8-9.04 of the Provincial Collective Agreement, the school board level committee is comprised of equal school board and local union representatives (parity), which may include classroom teachers. The local union works jointly with the school board where service and support allocations for students with special needs are concerned. The local union, along with the school board, can:

- Advise on special education policy
 - Verify resources/funds available to schools
 - Determine the criteria for allocating resources
 - Receive and analyze School Level Special Needs Reports
 - Analyze additional support requests from schools
- Make recommendations on:
 - Services provided
 - Models for organizing services in schools for forming (special) classes
 - Allocation of resources
 - Funds reserved to provide additional services for new cases
 - Call upon representatives of other school board employment categories to participate in committee discussions

Internal rules of order for the School Board Parity Committee

The Provincial Collective Agreement does not provide for specific rules of order, such as frequency of meetings, time of meetings, or location, as these are local decisions (clause 8-9.13). For more detailed information on the functioning of this committee at the local or regional level, please consult your local union, the local collective agreement between your school board and local union, or your school board's Special Education Policy.

Teachers and the School Level Special Needs Committee

As per clause 8-9.05 of the Provincial Agreement, composition of this committee must consist of teachers and the school principal. The number of teachers on the school level committee is a local union and school board decision (clause 8-9.13). In some schools, for example, the committee is composed of not more than three teachers (one teacher from each cycle in elementary) and of the school principal. In some schools with 1,000 students or more, for example, school level committees may have up to five teacher representatives and the school principal. The teacher representatives must be appointed from the teaching staff.

Most discussions at this committee focus on attendant/integration aide and special education technician services available for students with special needs in regular classes, who may require physical and/or social/emotional support. Since support for learning is not the focus of this committee, there is no obligation for resource teachers (elementary remedial or high school supporting teachers) to be a part of the school-level committee. The teachers sitting on this committee can be from regular classes.

The school principal is a member of the committee but may be represented by the vice principal. The principal cannot be represented by a member of the professional, teaching or support staff.

At the request of the teachers or principal, a member of the professional or support staff who normally works with at-risk students and students with special needs may be invited to attend a committee meeting.

Based on the needs identified by schools and on the recommendations made by the school board parity committee for at-risk students and students with special needs, the school board allocates its resources to schools.

Once resources have been allocated to schools, the school-level committee then:

- Considers the number of support personnel services (attendants/integration aides and special education technicians) made available by the school board.
- Makes decisions on the overall organization and distribution of support personnel services (attendants/integration aides and special education technicians) for the school based on student and teacher support needs.
- Periodically assesses the effectiveness of the conditions in place facilitating access to support services.
- Produces a yearly report¹ on the support services allocated by the school board.

Method for accessing support services at the school level

For students and teachers to benefit from support from an attendant/integration aide or a special education technician, the committee must establish a support service access procedure. In doing this, the members must consider:

- The form to be used when support service is requested
- The conditions for use of the form and tracking requests
- The principal's role in the procedure
- The availability of support services

Criteria for distribution of support services at the school level

When deciding criteria for the distribution of support services provided by attendants/integration aides or special education technicians, the following elements should be considered:

- The number students with special needs, their needs and abilities, and the level of integration (partial or full)
- The number of students who have (Ministry) codes
- Established individualized education plans
- The size of the groups
- The presence of special classes in the school or the need to create new special classes

The committee seeks agreement from all its members, including the principal or the vice-principal. The agreement of the person representing the school's professional, or support staff is not required.

A school principal cannot bring a fully developed project or decision to the committee and simply ask the teachers to agree to it. No type of service structure can be imposed.

If a problem arises with the committee's operations, the teachers may submit the problem to the School Board Parity Committee or may use the dispute resolution mechanism established by the local union and the school board (clause 8-9.12).

Internal rules of order for the School Level Special Needs Committee

The Provincial Collective Agreement does not provide for specific rules of order, such as frequency of meetings, time of meetings, or location, as these are local decisions (clause 8-9.13)². For more detailed information on the functioning of this committee at the local or regional level, please consult your local union, the local collective agreement between your school board and local union, or your school board's Special Education Policy.

Conclusion

With increasing student needs, additional budgetary measures to consider, and measures being transferred directly to schools, the role of the local union and teachers in the school board and school level special needs committees is an important one. The involvement of the local union and teachers is essential to the organization of services for students with special needs.
